DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

During a personal interview with applicant's representative claims 72 and 88 were discussed as applicant's representative pointed that the references cited failed to teach the invention as claimed, however the examiners pointed out that the claims 72 and 88 lacked structural relationship and that the independent claims imply a design choice the use of "in a manner" recited within the claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 72-107are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 72 and 88 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential structural cooperative relationships of elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the necessary structural connections. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted structural cooperative relationships are: the claims recite the limitation "being designed and arranged in a manner that" does not establish a structural relationship between the structural elements to obtain the continuous train of electromagnetic radiation pulses.

Regarding claims 92 and 106,

Art Unit: 2828

Claims recite the limitations of "steps are carried out in a manner" implies a design choice.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 72-87, 92-101 and 106 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weingarten et al (PN 5,987,049) in view of Wintner et al (PN 6,363,090).

Regarding claims 72-87, 92-101 and 106.

Weingarten et al illustrates in figure 4 a pulsed mode locked solid-state laser having an optical resonator with a semiconductor saturable absorber (11) within the resonator for passive mode locking and a pair of prism (16,17) for dispersion compensation. Weingarten et al also discloses the mode locking capabilities of a kerr lens (column 6).

Weingarten et al does not disclose the optical resonator having a thin disk gain medium with cooling means on one the faces, does not disclose the repetition of the pulse of 100MHz or less, does not disclose cavity dumping, does not disclose Q-switch mode locking and does not disclose power scalable pulses.

Art Unit: 2828

Wintner et al illustrates in figure 2 a laser system for producing power scalable short pulses having an optical resonator with a Yb:YAG thin disk (1), as described in the abstract. The thin disk is mounted on a heat sink (2), which provides cooling. Column 6 discloses the laser system obtaining pulse repetitions in the MHz by means of cavity dumping.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a persona having ordinary skills in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the laser system of Weingarten et al with Wintner et al because Weingarten et al discloses that passive mode locking is fast enough to shape and stabilize ultra short pulses, as such pulses provided in the laser system of Wintner et al.

Regarding claim 87.

Examiner takes official notice of the use of a means for Q-switch mode locking.

Q-switch mode locking is a very well known and commonly used technique in the laser art.

Art Unit: 2828

Claims 88-91 and 102-105 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weingarten et al (PN 5,987,049) in view of Wintner et al (PN 6,363,090) as applied to claims 72 and 92 above, and further in view of Wallenstein (PN 5,828,424).

Weingarten et al and wintner et al do not disclose using frequency conversion means.

Wallenstein illustrates in figure 2 of a well-known common approach of frequency conversion of short pulses by using a noncritical phase matching crystal, as described in column 7.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a persona having ordinary skills in the art at the time the invention was to use of such well-known techniques for frequency conversion within the laser system of Weingarten et al and Wintner et al because it would provide frequency doubling of the laser beam.
